Tool #3: Pedigree

1. The pedigree is never more important than the dog itself.

5. Inheritance from grand-parents tends to be unequal.

2. The more information of the ancestors in a pedigree, the more useful the pedigree is.

6. There is no scientific support for the tail male/tail female theory of breeding

3. The more heritable a trait, the more likely the puppies will resemble the parents in this

4. Information on the dog itself is always more important than information on close relatives.
